Nov. 19. 1904.

My dear darling wife,

Sailing along, (or rather bumping), and ever farther and farther away from my own dear love. Anna, I wish you were with me! It all is so lonely so void, without you. Well, one day is already gone - and so I hope all the rest will pass along quickly, until back to you and "Home" again the days may last - the longer - the better.
Sincerely, I ordered a Jim Hinaway and Mr. Birkel has faithfully promised to have it at Waukegan by Dec. 15.

O, how I am looking forward to it!!
You know we must have all these things to make us happy - mustn't me? And how is my dear Edith?
I know she will be much comfort to you always - not only while I am gone - but always!
Give her my love and a good hug & kiss. O, for an good look at you now.
Monday next I hope to arrive in Chicago - and I will write to you every day.
With all my heart & soul,
With all my love and devotion
I am affectionately husband
Max
